When I was 7 and Stevie was 6, our parents taught us how to play chess and other games. Playing games was our life back then. Stevie and I were very competitive (好胜的) in everything.

We got older and better so our games were more serious, but also more exciting. The strange thing is that I enjoyed the games very much and was happy for my brother when he won. But then, I did not feel right and became less confident than before.

When I was 10 years old, I wanted to be successful at my talents. One day, I thought I had to find something Stevie couldn't do. Before long, I got Jimmy Nelson's record on "How to Become a Ventriloquist (腹语师)" and I practiced every day. After summer vacation, I did my first show for my class. The show was welcomed. Then I did a lot of shows to practice my new skill.

Learning ventriloquism (腹语, 口技) wasn't easy. The difficult part was developing the voice, because at first, it was soft and hard to hear. I memorized the routines and performed more. With time, I got better responses. The loud laughter continued along with the applause (掌声).

Four years later, my mother bought a professional ventriloquial figure, which I named Freddie O' Sullivan. He was very human-like with, big eyes. Treating Freddie like a real person helped improve my performance. In college, Freddie was well known. Over the years, I won many talent prizes.

One time, an old man who had watched my show with his family looked at Freddie carefully and asked him where he got his trousers. ★ I didn't know what was going on until I was told later that the gentleman hadn't spoken for 20 years.

Thanks to my brother, I created a lifetime with Freddie.

56 · Why did the writer decide to learn ventriloquism?

- A · To draw her parents' attention at home. B · To bring happy laughter to people around her.
C · To have a special talent better than her brother. D · To record her enjoyable and peaceful childhood.

57 · The underlined words "ventriloquial figure" in the passage probably refer to _____.

- A · costume for a show B · an instruction book
C · a toy looks like a small person D · a tool to help speak louder

58 · What do we know about Freddie O' Sullivan?

- A · Freddie troubled others in the college. B · Freddie made an old man start talking again.
C · Freddie took the place of the writer's brother. D · Freddie trained the writer in a professional way.

59 · Which of the following can be put in ★ ?

- A · That was what I wanted to ask B · There were a lot of strangers around at that time
C · As people passed by, some heard a strange voice D · His family looked at him with wet, moved eyes

60 · What would be the best title for the passage?

- A · How to Develop a Talent B · The Story of Freddie O' Sullivan
C · Find Your Own Talents to Succeed D · Two Brothers' Lifelong Competition

C

On a cold day in winter, a 13-year-old boy, living in Qinghai Province, was heading down a mountain top with his family. Suddenly, they saw two snow leopards (雪豹) near the Lancang River. "I see them for the first time. They look so cool!" he said.

Since the mid-20th century, the area of snow, grasslands and lakes in Sanjiangyuan has become smaller because of climate change and human activities. Many wild animals in the area have died out. Snow leopards are endangered.

Later, China set up Sanjiangyuan Nature Reserve to better protect the area and the wildlife there. In these years, the number of wild animals has been increasing. More than 70, 000 Tibetan antelopes (藏羚羊) live there now. And over 1, 000 snow leopards can be found in the area. It's higher than the average number around the world.

The local people have improved their understanding about environmental protection and have tried hard to protect the environment in Sanjiangyuan over the years. They still live on selling caterpillar fungus (冬虫夏草) they've found in grasslands. In the past, they carried food with them in plastic bags and left the bags and food waste behind. But now the local people have realized they should live together with nature in harmony. They often pick up waste on the grasslands. People also take their plastic bags and food waste down the mountain after eating. The local environment has taken on a new look. Many young people there said, "We will continue to guard our home and make it more beautiful."

61 · What can we know from paragraph 1 and paragraph 2?

- A · The snow leopards in Sanjiangyuan are in danger.
- B · Snow leopards are used to the environment in Sanjiangyuan.
- C · Snow leopards first appeared near the Lancang River.
- D · There were no more grasslands and lakes in Sanjiangyuan.

62 · Why did China build Sanjiangyuan Nature Reserve?

- A · To develop the local tourist industry.
- B · To improve the natural environment.
- C · To provide a home for more people.
- D · To find the source of three rivers.

63 · The local people in Sanjiangyuan has changed their way of _____.

- A · making a living
- B · crossing the grasslands
- C · carrying food with them
- D · dealing with waste

64 · What can we infer from the passage?

- A · The local people won't sell caterpillar fungus.
- B · More young people will come to Sanjiangyuan.
- C · Animals will live better in Sanjiangyuan.
- D · There will be no endangered animals.

65 · What's the best title for the passage?

- A · Snow Leopards in Qinghai
- B · The Wildlife of Sanjiangyuan
- C · The Role of People in Environmental Protection
- D · The Improvements of Sanjiangyuan Nature Reserve

There is no doubt that sports benefit us in many ways. _____

All in all, it' s helpful for us to do sports. So, let' s go out to exercise and enjoy sports.

Show the power of frictionInterleave (交错的) the page of two piles of sticky notes, say 40 interleaved pages, and they will produce opposite force which is called friction. How much can the friction produced by the interleaved pages support? Actually, it can support up to 60 pounds! That' s amazing, right? This shows that friction can create a very strong power.

Boil water in a paper cup

Put water in a paper cup and place it over a candle. The water will boil! During boiling, the temperature of the water remains at around 100° C because the energy taken in by the water is used to change its state rather than increase its temperature. It means that while the water is boiling, it stops the paper cup from reaching its burning point. So the paper cup does not burn as long as there is enough water to take in the heat.

Keep water from falling out of an overturned glass. A card can be stuck to a glass and keep the water in it, as if by magic! Air pressure forces the card upward, against the glass. The pressure is strong enough to stop the weight of the water pushing the card away.
