Breaking Screens Won't Break Screen Habits

In Chongqing, a mother broke the TV because her kid didn't listen to her and kept watching it while eating. The news shows how many kids today can't stop using phones, tablets, or watching TV too much. The mother's action shows her anger, but it also teaches the child a bad lesson. Parents should guide kids wisely instead of using force (暴力) because real education (教育) comes from understanding, not from being afraid.

An 80-Year-Old's Fight for Care

An 80-year-old Chinese woman took her two sons and a daughter to court (法庭) because they didn't take care of her. Though she raised them with great love, her children now pay no attention to her. In China, looking after parents is both a law and a good tradition. But today, some people care more about themselves than their family. This thing shows how family traditions are becoming less important.

In 2024, Wang, a full-time housewife, was injured (受伤) in a traffic accident caused by Xu. Although Wang didn't have a job outside, she was taking care of her family. She asked for lost-work pay, but Xu said no, saying she wasn't really working. However, the court in Wuhu thought differently. It believed that Wang's housework saved money for the family. So, the court said yes to her lost-work pay.

Communication is a problem for parents and children of all ages. If it’s hard for you to communicate with your parents, don’t worry about it. Here is some advice for you to bridge the generation gap (消除代沟).

Try to reach a compromise (和解). Perhaps you and your parents disagree on something. You can keep your disagreement and try your best to accept each other. My Favorite Music

There are kinds of music in the world, and different people have different tastes for music. For me, my favorite is classical music, especially Beethoven's works. I started to love it around age ten, after hearing Beethoven's Fifth Symphony at a school concert, which left a deep impression on its powerful melody and emotional depth.

I enjoy classical music because it soothes my mind and inspires me. Each piece tells a story, allowing me to experience the composer's emotions. Beethoven's music particularly resonates with me due to its complexity and expression of resilience against adversity.

Listening to classical music has become my ritual for concentration and relaxation. It brings peace and provides a space for introspection. Learning about the historical context enriches my appreciation, making each listening experience more meaningful. Classical music, especially Beethoven's, is a constant source of inspiration and comfort in my life.
